"The objects of this Society shall be . . . to carry out . . . the injunctions of Washington in his farewell address to the American People."—Article II. of the Constitution of the Empire State Society, Sons of the American Revolution.

"The Unity of Government, which constitutes you one people, . . . is a main pillar in the edifice of your real independence. . . . The name of AMERICAN, which belongs to you in your national capacity, must always exalt the just pride of patriotism more than any appellation derived from local discriminations. . . . In contemplating the causes which may disturb our Union, it occurs as matter of serious concern that any ground should have been furnished for characterizing parties by geographical discrimination-Northern and Southern, Atlantic and Western. . . To the efficacy and permanency of your Union, a government for the whole is indispensable. . . . The basis of our political system is the right of the people to make and to alter their constitution of government; but the constitution which at any time exists, until changed by an explicit and authentic act of the whole people, is sacredly obligatory upon all. . . . Resist with care the spirit of innovation upon its principles. . . . Let me warn you in the most solemn manner against the baneful effects of the spirit of party. . . . The habits of thinking in a free country should inspire caution in those intrusted with its administration, to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres, avoiding in the exercise of the powers of one department to encroach upon another. . . . If, in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way which the constitution designates; but let there be no change by usurpation. . . . Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. . . . Promote, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge. . . . As a very important source of strength and security, cherish public credit. . . . Observe good faith and justice towards all nations; cultivate peace and harmony with all. . . . Inveterate antipathies against particular nations and passionate attachments for others should be excluded. . . . Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence, the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake. . . . The great rule of conduct for us in regard to foreign nations is, in extending our commercial relations, to have with them as little political connection as possible. . . . Taking care always to keep ourselves, by suitable establishments, on a respectable defensive posture, we may safely trust to temporary alliances for extraordinary emergencies. . . . The duty of holding a neutral conduct [in case of war between foreign nations] may be inferred from the obligation which justice and humanity impose on every nation, in cases in which it is free to act, to maintain inviolate the relations of peace and amity towards other nations."-Washington's Farewell Address to the American People that is similar and much that is dissimilar. One point of striking similarity is, that each division of twenty-five years has been marked by a great war—the first, the War for Independence; the second, the War of 1812-15; the third, the Mexican War; the fourth, the Civil War; and the fifth the War with Spain; not to mention such minor wars interpersed as those with France and Tripoli and our Indian Wars.

Another point of similarity is, that each period has been characterized by an extension of our geographical boundaries. In the first quarter century, the original area of the Atlantic seaboard, from the district of Maine to the State of Georgia, both inclusive (about 392,520 square miles) was augmented, by the exploration, partial settlement, and cession by Great Britain, of the territory lying westward as far as the Mississippi, adding about 430,525 square miles. The second quarter witnessed the Louisiana purchase (1803), and the cession of Florida (1819), adding about 992,490 square miles. The third quarter recorded the annexation of Texas (1845), the concession by Origin of Modern Patriotic Societies.

Great Britain of the ownership of Oregon (1846), the cession of the great western Spanish territory (1848), and the Texas cession (1850), increasing the area by about 1,169,345 square miles. The fourth quarter was marked by the Gadsden purchase of 40,000 square miles, in 1853, and the acquisition of Alaska's 577,390 square miles in 1867. And the fifth quarter has just seen the addition of Hawaii, Cuba (temporarily in all probability), Porto Rico and the Philippines, adding 171,995 square miles, and making a total area of 3,774.265 square miles, with a population of 82,000,000 persons, under the protecting folds of the Stars and Stripes.

Comparisons between these periods might be multiplied almost indefinitely, showing the extraordinary material, social, industrial, and political progress of the Nation, but the phenomenon of the last quarter century to which it is the present purpose to call attention, is the marvelous unification of American sentiment which has been wrought largely through the instrumentality of the patriotic societies of the United States. Physical magnitude is not the measure of political greatness, and the grandeur of our lusty young Republic lies not in its world-wide extent. Since the source of national power is in unity and cohesion, proud as we are of the many brilliant material triumphs of the past twenty-five years, prouder should we be as a people of the happy manifestation of restored fraternity presented in 1898 by that significant and historical spectacle of the Congress of the United States, composed of representatives of all parties, from all sections, supporting with absolute unanimity the Executive in a great and critical policy.

This restoration of national unity is the flower of that "renaissance of patriotism" (as Garfield called it) which began in 1875, when, time being, the shot on Suntar in April, 1861, that arrayed brother against brother in the greatest civil war ever known, they recalled that other memorable shot at Lexington, in the same month of April, in 1775, that arrayed those brothers' great-grandfathers side by side in a common cause. Forgetting how the men of Baltimore had fired on the men from Massachusetts when the New Englanders appeared in their streets, they remembered how, in the days of auld lang syne, Virginia had sent to Massachusetts the great Commander-in-Chief of the first American army, and had sent after him Morgan and his Virginia sharpshooters to take their stand beside Stark, Green, Knox and other New Englanders on Cambridge Common. Then came 1876, stirring up

Then followed in majestic procession a series of centenaries, each commemorating some triumph of arms, legislation, or diplomacy, in which the actors had vied one with another in their zeal for the same cause. Under the miraculous touch of Memory's fingers, the scales fell from the eyes of the Nation's mental vision and people awoke to a new realization of their political brotherhood. what a vast body of traditions, antedating and overshadowing those of the Civil War, they had in common, and the old inspirations began to flame anew in their breasts. The wounds of the late conflict, left to themselves, cicatrized and ceased to smart; and men, women, and even children began to organize patriotic, historical, and genealogical societies based on their mutual endowments, and in which sectional lines should This does not mean that prior to 1875 there were none be forgotten. of these institutions in existence, for some of the most venerable of the historical and one of the leading patriotic hereditary societies antedate this period by many years; but it means that there was so great an accession of interest and zeal in this direction, beginning in 1875, as to constitute one of the remarkable features of the political life of the century.

To realize the importance of the work performed by these societies in raising the national efficiency to its highest point, one has but to notice the order in which it occurred in the sequence of great historical events of the North American continent. The white conquerors of this country represented two races of antagonistic principles—the Latin and the Anglo-Saxon, or, more broadly speaking, the Latin and the Germanic—and it was first necessary to determine which should dominate. The French and Indian War, beginning in April—that month so singularly prolific of American wars,-1755, definitely settled that question, although it has taken 143 years completely to eliminate Latin rule from the hemisphere. Next in order arose the question as to which branch of the dominant race should govern, the American or the English. That was effectively solved by the war which began in April, 1775. Next came the question whether the American people should govern as a whole or in parts. That was answered by the war which began in April, 1861. To round out the sublime logic of these events, but one thing remained to be done. The Civil War had settled the third question by force, but there was need of some gentle yet powerful influence to make effective in the hearts of the people that harmony of sentiment without which the nominal Union of States would have been a constant source of danger and weakness.

Sons of the American Revolution.

It was at this point that the anniversary influences previously referred to, operating through societies such as ours, began their healing work. and the test of their efficacy came in April, 1898, when the Government found itself reluctantly forced into war with Spain. The result is Our enemies, not realizing that the old dissensions had well known. been buried, were confounded by the marvelous unanimity of the Nation which rose as a single man, and, panoplied with the might of a united sentiment, stood invincible before the world. Origin of the Society.

The general causes leading to the formation of the modern patriotic societies having been described in the preceding pages, it is now pertinent to relate the circumstances attending the organization of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, and to explain the causes of the existence of two sets of societies with similar names.*

The Society of the Cincinnati, formed in 1783, was the first, and for nearly one hundred years the only society of men whose membership was derived from the American Revolution. From the nature of its constitution it has always been a small society, and has grown smaller with time. It takes little part in public affairs, and is virtually a delightful social club, or collection of social clubs, one of whose public services has been to keep alive among its own members and their immediate relatives a strong interest in pedigree and in the American Revolution.

In 1875, as has previously been stated, the people of the United States entered upon a period of about fifteen years of celebrations of the tooth anniversaries of leading events of the American Revolution. These celebrations took place all over the United States. The Centennial Exposition of 1876 at Philadelphia was the most impressive of the early celebrations, while the most conspicuous of the later ones was the great demonstration in New York City in 1889, upon the rooth anniversary of Washington's inauguration as first President of the United States. The American people welcomed these public festivities. They gave us something to think about, and talk about, besides the issues growing out of the late Civil War. They made all classes, North and South, once more brothers and gallant friends, and they brought into being the throng of patriotic societies of which ours is one.

The first of these modern patriotic societies was entitled "Sons of Revolutionary Sires," and originated in San Francisco. It was agreed upon and instituted October 22, 1875, at the office of Dr. John L. Cogswell, on Kearney Street in that city, where about ten men held a meeting, by invitation of Dr. Cogswell, and resolved to form a society to be composed exclusively of lineal descendants from the heroes and statesmen of the American Revolution. On the following 4th of July there was a public procession in San Francisco, and about forty of the eighty members of the new society paraded in the procession, thirteen of them bearing shields emblematic of the thirteen original States. The society elected officers that same day, and thereafter, for years, held many public meetings of a patriotic and literary character, whose proceedings were reported in the newspapers and reprinted in what the society called "bulletins," and in the latter form widely distributed. At that original meeting of October 22, 1875, Edwin A. Sherman, of Nevada, who was present, suggested that the proposed society should be made a national one, not local: and accordingly when, in 1876, the California Society adopted a constitution, it provided for "auxiliary" branches, co-equal societies, and a national representative body. That word "auxiliary" cropped out afterward in the East in a most unexpected This constitution of the first society of descendants of the American Revolution ever formed since the Revolution itself, possesses genuine historic value, and has many unique features. Copies were sent out all over the United States. And this California Society is, in fact, the pioneer, and led to the formation of all our present Societies of Sons and Daughters, of Colonial Wars, Colonial Dames, War of

Some of these little books, with the circulars and bulletins of the California Society, were sent year after year to residents of New York City. Gen. Alex. S. Webb received some of them; so did Major Asa Bird Gardiner, and others. The California movement excited interest in the East; but California is 3,000 miles away, and had never even been heard of at the time of the American Revolution, and there were those who felt that societies of this class could not be formed in the East as the children of a society in California.

In 1883, however, eight years after the first start in California, a few men in New York City, including some to whom had been sent the constitution, circulars and bulletins of the California Society, did meet, and they organized an independent society here, called "Sons of the Revolution." Thus the seed planted by California had sprouted at last in the Metropolis. The new society was small in membership, and at first intended to be purely local. But finally it also adopted a constitution, providing that societies might be formed in other States, each of which should be an "auxiliary branch." That expression, "auxiliary branch," adopted from the California Society's constitution, was an error of judgment, now at last confessed, but long persisted in. It was that word "auxiliary," and that alone, which led to the creation of two sets of societies. A Society of Sons of the Revolution was organized in Philadelphia in 1888, although refusing to be "auxiliary" to New York.

This movement of 1883 awoke fresh interest in the general subject of patriotic societies in the East; but that word "auxiliary" prevented gentlemen in New England and others of the original thirteen States from organizing societies of their own. Massachusetts, Connecticut, and other States had each supplied far more men for the American Revolution than New York did. A natural pride prevented those States from being "auxiliary" to New York. For about five years, therefore, these two societies in the East and the pioneer society in California were all there were of these modern societies.

In 1888, a few New Jersey members of the New York Sons of the Revolution proposed to form a New Jersey Society. The New York Sons told them they would be recognized only as an "auxiliary" society, and not otherwise, and, further, that they would better join either the New York or Philadelphia Society anyhow, and not have one of their own. These patriotic and enterprising Jerseymen, one of whom, Josiah C. Pumpelly, is now a member of our own Society, then went to In the spring of 1889 they organized, by correspondence and personal visits, State Societies of Sons of the Revolution in New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, West Virginia, Arkansas, South Carolina, Kentucky, and Tennessee. They then called a convention of them all, to meet in New York City, April 30, 1889, the day of the great celebration of the rooth anniversary of Washington's inauguration. The object was to organize a national society-mark the name-of Sons of the Revolution, in which each State Society should be a co-equal sister organization, and none of them "auxiliary" to any other. They never dreamed of forming a new organization. Their whole purpose was to bring the influence of several States to bear, to induce New York to repeal the "auxiliary" article in her constitution.

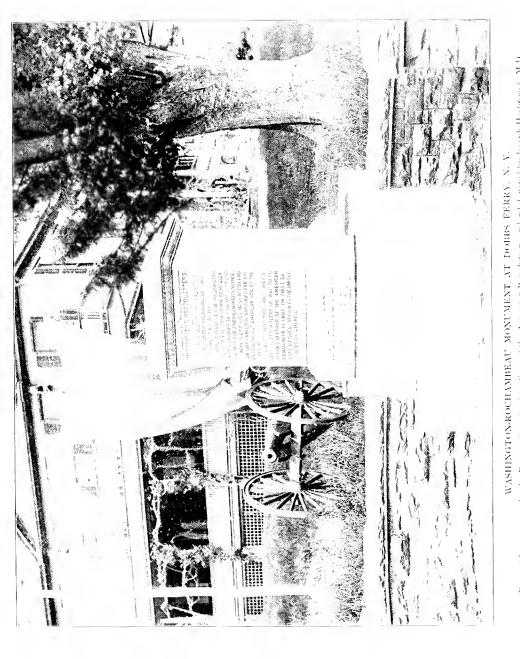

When the New Yorkers heard of this movement, if they had promptly met and repealed that "auxiliary" article, there never would have been two sets of societies. No one wanted two sets; no one thought of it. But what did the New Yorkers do? They actually met and adopted a new constitution, in which the "auxiliary" article was made longer, more explicit, and more binding, thus ignoring the patriotic sentiment and natural pride of every sister State, and declaring war upon any movement having for its object the co-equality of the different State Societies. By making all the other States "auxiliary' to New York, the annual election of national officers would have to be held in New York, and would always have been controlled by the local members.

To the National Convention referred to, every existing Society was invited, and delegates attended from thirteen out of the twenty, including the original one in California, with persons present from New York and Pennsylvania. The convention met at Fraunces' Tayern, April 30. 1889. There the Pennsylvania delegates took the floor and urged that all the other Societies should become "auxiliaries" to New York. This was debated for a long time. Pennsylvania was asked if her Society were "auxiliary" to New York. She replied "no." The convention then refused point blank to agree to the "auxiliary" relation to New York. Not one State in that whole convention would agree to that proposition. The New Yorkers refused, for their part, to recognize the others as "sister" Societies, and both Pennsylvania and New York took no further part in the proceedings. The question then arose, what should be done? The convention was there, in actual session, acting in behalf of eighteen States, including the original Society in California. delegates felt deeply the injustice of an attempt to impose an un-American style of organization upon a Society which should be preeminently American in all its sentiments, objects and framework, and especially to try to control in this manner a movement which New York had not even originated. After discussion, before they adjourned, the convention organized as a National Society, taking the name of "Sons OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION." They thus began existence with eighteen State Societies, while the "Sons of the Revolution" only had two; and every one of the eighteen soon thereafter adopted the title "Sons of the American Revolution."

In the fraternal hope that the New York Society of the Sons of the Revolution would join the NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, several months were allowed to elapse before active steps were taken for the formation of a New York State Society OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION. When, however, there appeared to be no immediate prospect of such a consummation, the National Society, of which Dr. William Seward Webb was then President-General, deputed Dr. Webb's brother, Mr. George Creighton Webb, to organize a State Society. Mr. Webb entered upon his congenial task with zeal, and on February 11, 1890, THE NEW YORK STATE Society of the Sons of the American Revolution was organized in Dr. Webb's office in New York City. In 1895, when it became desirable to incorporate the Society under the laws of the State of New York for the purpose of holding the real estate at Dobbs Ferry, upon which it had erected a monument, it was discovered that back in December (26), 1889, while the subject of the formation of the New York STATE SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION was being agitated, five gentlemen not affiliated with the Sons of the American REVOLUTION and having no power to act in their name, had incorporated under the title of "The New York Society of Sons of the American Revolution*"—a title so similar to that of "The New York State Society of the Sons of the American Revolution" that it became necessary to change our name to "The Empire State Society of the Sons of the American Revolution," under which title the Society was duly incorporated April 8, 1895. Notwithstanding the peculiar obstacles encountered by the Society in this State, its growth has been so rapid that it is second in size only to the Massachusetts Society, and second to none in the extent and importance of its public activities.

On the decennial anniversary of the organization of THE NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, April 30, 1899, the Society may well contemplate with pride its progress during the past ten years. It has, by its enterprise, public spirit, and incessant activity, so stimulated patriotic sentiment that now the United States is thronged with a multitude of patriotic Societies; with more to come. Our progress has been due to the fact that at the very beginning our Society was organized upon the broad American principle of constituting one National Society, divided for convenience into co-equal sister-State Societies, and the latter subdivided to some extent into local branches or chapters; and the further fact that The Sons of the Ameri-CAN REVOLUTION were the especial Society that admitted no man to membership unless he was a lineal descendant from a patriot of the American Revolution. The wisdom of these provisions has been so apparent that the Sons of the Revolution have, since the events of 1889, repealed the "auxiliary" article in their constitution, and still later have abolished their long-cherished provision for admission by collateral descent. It has been on account of our strict requirement for membership, and because of the thorough Americanism of our organization and the public spirit of our members, that an exceedingly large number of men of high social position and national reputation have joined our Society in all parts of the country. The very rigid and excellent application blank, now used by all the different Societies of Sons and Daughters, originated with us, and has been adopted on its merits by all of them. If there is rivalry, because there are two sets of Societies, the influence is healthful, because it is leading us all to greater undertakings than would have been possible without the spice of what, it is hoped, is a generous and friendly emulation in achieving a larger number of inspiring works for the glory and welfare of our common country.

^{*}These gentlemen were Messrs. Frederick G. Gedney, Albert Ross Parsons, Edward Nicoll Townsend and George N. Gardiner, members of the New York Society of Sons of the Revolution, and Asa B. Gardiner, J., son of a member of that society.

A movement for the union of the NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION and the General Society of the Sons of the History of the movements for the union of the Societies of the Sons of the American Revolution and Sons of the Revolution.

Revolution began very soon after the formation of the NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION in 1889; but the overtures of the National Officers of The Sons of the American Revolution were not cordially reciprocated by those of the other Society, and little progress toward union was made for three years. The agitation of the subject, however, set in operation in the Society of the Sons of the Revolution influences favorable to an amalgamation, one of the fruits of which was the abolition of the "auxiliary" clause in their constitution which had been the bone of so much contention, and the adoption of a form of organization based more nearly on the representative American idea. About this time, several of the larger and more influential State Societies of THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION received invitations from Societies of the Sons of the Revolution in New York and elsewhere to join their General Society. Our Societies, so invited, feeling that as State Societies they could not, in good faith with their associates. accept such invitations, replied that they could unite with the Society of the Sons of the Revolution only under a union of both General Societies. upon terms mutually to be agreed upon. At length, after receiving distinct assurances, privately but repeatedly, that such a movement was actually desired by the Sons of the Revolution, the Connecticut delegates to the Annual Congress of the Sons of the American Revolu-TION held in New York City, April 30, 1892, introduced the following resolution, which was adopted without dissent:

WHEREAS: There now exist in several States of the Union, Societies of the Sons of the Revolution and Societies of THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION; and

WHEREAS, The purposes and objects of these Societies are identical and their interests mutual; therefore

Resolved. That this organization hereby appoints Jonathan Trumbull of Connecticut, together with the Presidents of the State Societies of this organization in those States where both organizations exist, as a committee to consider union; and the Sons of the Revolution are hereby cordially and earnestly invited to appoint a similarly constituted committee of an equal number, in the sincere belief that by such a conference all difficulties can be overcome and a fraternal union of both organizations will be the happy result.

A copy of the foregoing resolution was transmitted to the Sons of the Revolution, with the result that they took similar action. During the ensuing nine months, the committees appointed by the two Societies held frequent meetings, separately and jointly, at last agreeing to the following report which was submitted to the respective societies at general conventions held simultaneously in different rooms in the Mutual Life Building, New York City, February 16, 1893. At this time, the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution existed in over thirty states and numbered nearly 4,000 members, while the Society of the Sons of the Revolution existed in ten states with a membership stated to be 2,364.

To

GENERAL HORACE PORTER,

President General of the Sons of the American Revolution, and

HON. JOHN LEE CARROLL,

President General of the Sons of the Revolution :

The Committees of THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION and Sons of the Revolution, to whom was entrusted by their respective Societies the duty of conferring upon the question of union of the two Societies, beg leave to present this, their joint report.

First: They desire to express their gratification at the cordiality, harmony, and enthusiasm that have marked their deliberations, and the unanimity which has attended their conclusions.

Second: The desirability of effecting a union being concurred in by all, the Committees of Conference addressed themselves at once to the consideration of the questions essential to the accomplishment of the desired result. These were:

- 1. Name.
- 2. Colors.
- 3. Insignia.
- 4. New Constitution.

Third: The committees unanimously decided and do now recommend:

- 1. That THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN_REVOLUTION and Sons of the Revolution do unite in one organization.
 - 2. That the Society so constituted be named Sons of the Revolution.
 - 3. That its colors be buff and blue.
- 4. That its insignia be, in its general features, that of The Society of the Sons of the American Revolution; that its seal be of the form hereinafter described.
 - 5. That its constitution be as follows:

The Constitution of the General Society

of the

Sons of the Revolution.

ARTICLE I.

The name of the Society shall be the "Sons of the Revolution."

ARTICLE II.

The objects of this Society are, to perpetuate the memory of the men who, in the military, naval or civil service of the Colonies and of the Continental Congress, by their acts or counsel, achieved the Independence of the Country; to further the proper celebration of the anniversaries of the birthday of Washington, and of prominent events connected with the War of the Revolution; to collect and secure for preservation the rolls, records and other documents relating to that period; to mark by appropriate monuments historic places; to impress upon the present and future generations the patriotic spirit which actuated our ancestors and established the Republic of the United States, and to promote the feeling of friendship among its members.

ARTICLE III.

Any man is eligible to membership who is of the age of twenty-one years and who is lineally descended from an ancestor who, with unfailing loyalty, rendered material aid to the cause of American Independence as a military officer, minute-man, soldier, sailor or marine, or a civil official in the service of any of the several Colonies or States or of the United Colonies or States, whose services as such official shall appear by public official record made at the time, and provided such man be found worthy.

Provided further, that when the claim of eligibility is based on the service of an ancestor as a civil official, such service must have been performed in the civil service of the United States, or of one of the thirteen original States, and must have been sufficiently important in character to have rendered the official specially liable to arrest and imprisonment, the same as a combatant, if captured by the enemy, as well as liable to conviction of treason against the Government of Great Britain.

And provided further, that when there shall be no surviving issue in direct lineal succession from an officer, minute-man, soldier, sailor or marine, who died or was killed in actual service, or from an officer who received by formal resolve the approbation of the Continental Congress for Revolutionary services, or from a signer of the Declaration of Independence, the claim of eligibility shall descend and be limited to one representative at a time in the nearest collateral line of descent from such ancestor, to be designated by the State Society; and no other descendants in collateral lines shall be admitted in right of any services whatever.

The Board of Managers of each State Society shall have full and exclusive power to determine the qualifications as to worthiness and eligibility of applicants for membership under this Article, with power to accept or reject all applications.

ARTICLE IV.

The General Society shall be divided into State Societies, which shall meet annually on the day appointed therefor in their respective by-laws, and oftener, if found expedient. The Secretary of each State Society shall transmit to the General Secretary a list of its members, together with the names and official designations of those from whom such members claim membership, with a list of officers elected at each annual meeting.

ARTICLE V.

The State Societies shall regulate all matters respecting their own affairs consistent with the general good of the Society, judge of the qualification of their members and of those proposed for membership, subject, however, to the provisions of this Constitution, and may expel any member who, by conduct unbecoming a gentleman or man of honor, or by an opposition to the interests of the community in general, or of the Society in particular, may render himself unworthy to continue in membership.

ARTICLE VI.

The expenses of the General Society shall be borne by the State Societies by assessment pro rata according to membership.

ARTICLE VII.

The regular meeting of the General Society shall be held every year on the last Wednesday of April in the city of New York, unless otherwise designated, and special meetings may be held upon the order of the General President or upon the request of two of the State Societies, and such meetings shall consist of the General Officers and a representation from each State Society not exceeding one delegate from each one hundred members of such State Society and every fraction of one hundred over fifty, and ex-officio, the President, Secretary, Registrar and Historian of each State Society, and two delegates-at-large from each State Society.

The expenses attending the annual meetings of the General Society shall be borne by the General Society.

ARTICLE VIII.

At the regular meeting a General President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, Chaplain, Registrar and Historian shall be chosen by a majority of the votes present, to serve until the next regular general meeting or until their successors are duly chosen.

The General Society shall have power at any meeting to admit State Societies thereto, and to entertain and determine all questions affecting the qualification for membership in, or the welfare of, any State Society, which may by proper memorial be presented by such State Society for consideration.

ARTICLE IX.

The insignia of the General Society shall be a cross surmounted by an eagle in gold or silver, and a rosette.

The cross shall be of silver, with four arms, and eight white-enameled points, same size as the Chevalier's Cross of the Legion of Honor of France, with a gold medallion in the center, bearing on the obverse a bust of Washington in profile, and on the reverse the figure of a minute-man surrounded by a ribbon enameled buff and blue, with the motto, "Libertas et Patria," on the obverse, and the legend, "Sons of the Revolution," on the reverse, both in letters of gold. The cross shall be surmounted by an eagle in gold or silver, and the whole decoration suspended from a ring of gold by a ribbon of dark blue, ribbed and watered, edged with buff, one and one-quarter inches wide and one and one-half inches in displayed length, and may be worn by any member of the Society on ceremonial occasions only, and shall be carried on the left breast, or, if an officer, on the collar, and shall never be worn as an article of jewelry. The custodian of this insignia shall be the General Secretary, who shall issue the same to the members of the Society under such proper rules as may be formulated by the General Society, and he shall keep a register of such issues, wherein each insignia issued may be identified by the number thereof.

The rosette shall be seven-sixteenths of an inch in diameter, of usual pattern, displaying the colors of the Society, and may be worn by all members at discretion in the upper left-hand button-hole of the coat.

ARTICLE X.

The Seal of the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution shall be one and seven-eighths of an inch in diameter and shall consist of the figure of a minute-man in Continental Uniform standing on a ladder leading to a belfry and holding in his left hand a musket and an olive branch, and grasping in his right hand a bell rope; above, the cracked "Liberty Bell;" issuing therefrom a ribbon, bearing the motto of the Sons of the Revolution, "Exegi Monumentum Ære Perennius;" across the top of the ladder, on a ribbon, the figures "1775," and at the left of the minute-man, and also on a ribbon, the figures "1783;" the whole encircled by a band three-eighths of an inch wide, thereon at the top thirteen stars of five points each, and at the bottom the legend, "Sons of the Revolution;" the following being a fac-simile thereof (see illustration opposite page 27.)

The custodian of the seal shall be the General Secretary.

ARTICLE VI

This Constitution may be amended, provided two-thirds of the members of the General Society present at any general meeting or special meeting shall approve, and provided further, that notice of such motion to amend, specifying such proposed amendment in full, shall be given in writing to the presiding officer of the General Society and of each State Society at least sixty days before such motion is to be considered.

Fourth: That this proposed union may be made effectual this Committee further recommends:

1. The presentation of its report to the respective National Societies of the Sons OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION and Sons of the Revolution at meetings to be called for that purpose on Thursday, the 16th day of February, 1893, in the City of New York, and the adoption at such meetings of a resolution recommending the union of the two societies and the adoption of the proposed Constitution.

2. At a joint meeting, immediately thereafter, of the two General Societies, the adoption of the new Constitution and election of officers, to serve until the last Wednesday of April, 1804, or until their successors are elected.

All of which is respectfully submitted. New York, December 22, 1892.

ROBERT LENOX BELKNAP,

Delegate New York Society Sons of the Revolution, JAMES MORTIMER MONTGOMERY,

Secretary of Committee of Conference,

General Secretary Sons of the Revolution,

Secretary of Sons of the Revolution State of New York.

NATHAN WARREN,

Registrar Massachusetts Society Sons of the American Revolution.

This plan proved far from satisfactory to the larger Society, The Sons of the American Revolution, for it (1) surrendered our name for that of the Sons of the Revolution; (2) gave up our colors for theirs; (3) abandoned our seal for theirs; and (4) proposed a Constitution composed largely of verbatim provisions from theirs, and containing many objectionable features. Among the latter was the provision admitting members by collateral descent. The Sons of the American Revolution prided themselves especially upon their exclusion of "collaterals" and the incorporation in the proposed Constitution of the "collateral" provision of the Sons of the Revolution was regarded as a lowering of the standard of eligibility to which the "American" Sons were extremely reluctant to accede. Nevertheless, so earnest was the desire of the S. A. R. Congress to effect a union, that the delegates reluctantly yielded their preferences and unanimously adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Report be accepted and its recommendations adopted, and that when we adjourn it be to meet in joint session with the Sons of the Revolution to carry into effect the recommendations of said Report and perfect the union of the two Societies. Provided, that we reserve the right of every individual member of either body to offer any amendment, which he may think proper to the plan of union or the Constitution, for the consideration of the joint meeting of the two Societies.

This action was announced to the Congress of the Sons of the Revolution, with the result that, after the midday recess, the Sons of the Revolution sent to The Sons of the American Revolution a delegation, headed by Fredk. S. Tallmadge, President of their New York State Society. Mr. Tallmadge addressed The Sons of the American Revolution, rehearsing the efforts of the joint Committee to prepare a satisfactory report, stating that "every ground was gone over," and continuing:

"This meeting, as we understand it, is to adopt or reject that Report and that Constitution, and if there is anything imperfect about it that needs amendment, let it be made at some future time. But when we are just on the eve of uniting under the same roof, with our hearts beating almost as one, don't let us, for a trifling objection, leave and part to-night, perhaps to meet no more."

He then announced that the Sons of the Revolution had adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That we recommend the union of the Sons of the Revolution and The Sons of the American Revolution, and the adoption of the Constitution proposed by the committees of said Societies by the Report received at this meeting."

and concluded as follows:

"We desire, as it is towards the close of the afternoon, that you will pass a resolution similar to that and that my friends who are here (for I am proud to call them such) will simply say, Away with debate! Away with amendments! Let the future take care of itself. Let us unite with one name and one country."

Upon the withdrawal of the delegation of the Sons of the Revolution, the President General of The Sons of the American Revolution, General Horace Porter, delivered with great dignity, earnestness and force a strong appeal to his compatriots to exercise patience and self-sacrifice, and accept the proposed basis of union. Some further discussion ensued, resulting in the adoption verbatim by the S. A. R. of the resolution reported by Mr. Tallmadge as adopted by the Sons of the Revolution, to wit:

Resolved, That we recommend the union of the Sons of the Revolution and THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, and the adoption of the Constitution proposed by the Committees of said Societies by the Report received at this meeting."

This action was communicated to the Sons of the Revolution, who informed the Committee conveying the resolution that they would be down-stairs in a few moments for the joint Congress.

After an interval of an hour and a half, several Sons of the Revolution appeared at the door of The Sons of the American Revolution, and the latter rose to their feet and began to applaud. The Sons of the Revolution, however, proved not to be the whole Congress, coming for the purpose of union upon the terms now mutually agreed upon, but a committee conveying an entirely new proposition. The proposition of the Sons of the Revolution was that each General Society appoint a committee of two members, with power to select a fifth person who should belong to neither Society, who should examine the membership credentials of both Societies and should erase from the list of membership in each of the Societies the name of any member, from whose credentials and application it appeared that he was not entitled to membership under the requirements of Article III. of the Constitution just As soon as the revised membership list had been certified to the President-Generals of the two Societies, they were to call a joint meeting of the Societies for the adoption of the Constitution (which had already been adopted), and for the election of officers; and "said Constitution, if approved at such meeting, together with the proceedings of this conference or meeting, shall be submitted for final ratification to the various State Societies."

The astonishment of The Sons of the American Revolution at this new proposition was apparent in the absolute silence with which the remarks of the spokesman were received. The Sons of the AMERICAN REVOLUTION had no objection to the scrutiny of their membership papers, as they regarded their membership credentials, based on lineal descent, superior to those of the other Society; but they considered the proposal a violation of the agreement just adopted by both Societies which provided that in order "that this proposed union may be made effectual," the respective National Societies should, on Feb. 16. 1803, pass a resolution recommending union and adopt the proposed constitution (as had been done), and at "a joint meeting, immediately thereafter of the two General Societies [should occur], the adoption of the new constitution and election of officers to serve until the last Wednesday of April, 1804, or until their successors are elected." The departure from the terms of the agreement was considered the wider in view of statements made earlier in the day by Mr. Tallmadge of the Sons of the Revolution to The Sons of the American Revolution that "every ground was gone over" and his earnest plea to "away with amendments," etc. After the S. A. R. had yielded reluctantly to this plea and repressed their desired amendments, the Sons of the Revolution appeared with a radical amendment of their own.

The proceedings in the Congress of the S. A. R. after the withdrawal of the Committee of the Sons of the Revolution were brief. After a few remarks, making clear the position of the Society, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That we disapprove of the motion as not pertinent to Paragraph 4 of the Report of the Committee, and we request the other Society now to unite with us and to adopt the Constitution in accordance with that paragraph."

This action was communicated to the Sons of the Revolution, who stood by their new proposition as unanimously as The Sons of the American Revolution had rejected it; upon learning which, The Sons of the American Revolution adjourned sine die.

Apropos of the subject of membership credentials may be quoted the following passage from the official report of the Committee of Conference of the S. A. R. on the foregoing proceedings:

"The refusal of our Society to agree to this new measure was, in no way, attributable to any hesitation on our part to submit our records and credentials to a full and proper examination. . . . Our confidence in our own credentials and in the Society with which we were in treaty was such that a fully representative preliminary conference of our delegates had agreed, by unanimous vote, on the evening of February 15th, to nominate and support the election of the present General Secretary of the Sons of the Revolution as General Secretary of the proposed united Society. He would thus have been the officer to whom, under the proposed Constitution, the credentials of our various State Societies would have been submitted for inspection, and for presentation, after his approval, to the united General Society. The powers conferred upon him would have been fully as great as the powers proposed to be conferred upon the Joint Committee to whose appointment we were unwilling to agree, besides having the merit of authority under the constitution which was to be adopted before the election of officers. The election of this officer, which would have been unanimous on our part, would then, virtually, have placed the inspection of membership in the hands of the Society of Sons of the Revolution, in accordance with its previous usages. It was one of the many concessions we were prepared to make, and had already made, to that Society, not with any desire to adopt its name, colors, seal or officers, but simply in the belief that the importance of uniting the two Societies was paramount to any questions of mere courtesy upon which we might have insisted."

The failure of the Congresses of 1893 to unite, did not, however, put an end to the movement. The cordial relations existing between individual members and individual State Societies of the two General Societies gave evidence of the hearty sentiment still existing in favor of an amalgamation, and the belief entertained by The Sons of the American Revolution that the action of the Congress of the Sons of the Revolution on Feb. 16, 1893, did not represent the prevailing sentiment of that Society, led them the more readily to forget the irritating incidents of the late unsuccessful effort. During the next three years the mutual disposition for union increased and on April 20, 1896, the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution, at its triennial meeting in Savannah, Ga., adopted resolutions extending a fraternal invitation to The National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution to unite with them in a single Society. This was cordially met by the following resolutions adopted by the National Congress of The Sons of the American Revolution at Richmond, Va., April 30, 1896.

"Whereas, The National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution notes, with sincere gratification, the growing sentiment in favor of a union with the Society of the Sons of the Revolution, upon terms which shall be well considered and equitable, and which shall tend to promote the honor, dignity and largest usefulness of the Societies and the patriotic and public spirited objects for which both are organized; and

"WHEREAS, The General Society of the Sons of the Revolution in triennial meeting assembled in the city of Savannah, Ga., April 20th, inst., did adopt resolutions, extending a sincere and fraternal invitation to THE NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION to unite with them in a single Society; and.

Whereas, The National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution is heartily, sincerely and fraternally desirous of a consolidation of the two Societies, upon a well-considered basis, and is anxious to submit its rolls of membership to a most rigorous and searching examination by a competent and disinterested tribunal, in order that it may, once for all, in the eyes of all men, supply the indubitable proof of the eligibility of all its members, as lineal descendants of Revolutionary ancestors; now, therefore,

Be it Resolved, By THE NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, in annual Congress assembled in the City of Richmond, Va., April 30, 1896, that we do hereby send our most fraternal and cordial greetings to the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution, and declare, without reservation, our strong, sincere desire for a consolidation of the two Societies into a single Society, upon a well-considered basis of union.

Resolved, That we do hereby instruct the General Officers of this Society to submit the membership rolls and the original credentials and applications, on which membership has been granted, for a fresh examination to a competent and disinterested committee, so constituted by mutual agreement of the General Officers of both Societies as to command the entire confidence of both the uniting Societies, said committee to indicate the person or persons in each Society who shall not have indubitable proof of lineal descent from a Revolutionary ancestor, in accordance with the plan of consolidation agreed to by the Committees of Conference in 1893, but now voluntarily amended by the Sons of the Revolution by omitting the paragraph which provides for the admission of "collaterals;" and The NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION does hereby pledge itself to erase from its rolls of membership the names of all persons, indicated by said committee as not having indubitable proof of lineal descent.

Resolved, That we hereby empower the General Officers of this Society to appoint a committee of able, competent and disinterested men, who shall confer with a like committee of equal size, appointed by the General Officers of the Sons of the Revolution, to agree upon a basis for the union of the two Societies, to the end that said plan of union, together with the report of the Committee on Revision of the Membership Rolls, may promptly be transmitted by the General Officers of both Societies to their respective State Societies for approval, so that when a majority of the State Societies of each organization shall have approved the same, said General officers may cause a special Congress of the United Societies to be elected, upon the basis of the new Constitution to form a national organization. And, further, we do hereby pledge The National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, heartily and sincerely, to labor for the removal of every possible cause of disagreement between the two Societies, and to effect a satisfactory union at the earliest possible dates.

Resolved, That the President-General and the Secretary-General of this Society are instructed immediately to communicate this preamble and accompanying resolutions to the officers of the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution, with the assurance of our fraternal regard and our desire that a union of the two Societies may speedily be effected.

This action was followed by an exchange of correspondence between the General Officers of the two Societies.

On May 9, 1896, The Sons of the American Revolution communicated their resolutions to the other Society.

On May 25, 1896, the Sons of the Revolution wrote that they were prepared to appoint a committee to examine credentials, and that after the membership rolls had been revised they were prepared to unite in a call for a Congress of the two Societies for union on the basis "of the Constitution agreed upon by both Societies, February 16, 1893, as amended by the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution at its triennial meeting in Savannah on the 20th day of April, 1896." This amendment by the Sons of the Revolution consisted of the elimination of the provision for membership by collateral descent.

On May 29, 1896, The Sons of the American Revolution replied, inviting the General Officers of the other Society to meet their National Officers at the Waldorf Hotel, at 3.30 p. m., June 3d, for the purpose of selecting by mutual agreement a committee on membership credentials; promising to strike from their rolls the names of any members found disqualified for membership; and calling attention to the omission of the Sons of the Revolution to respond to the proposition for a joint committee on basis of union. The Sons of the American Revolution said that the basis agreed upon in 1893 was unsatisfactory in view of existing knowledge and conditions and cited the important amendment proposed by the Sons of the Revolution as a precedent for further modification in the line of improvement.

On June 3, 1896, at 3.30 P. M. the National Officers of The Sons of The American Revolution assembled at the Waldorf Hotel, to meet the General Officers of the other Society, but none appeared.

On June 8, 1896, the Sons of the Revolution wrote that they had no power to appoint a committee on basis of union; that they considered the basis "concluded by the terms of the agreement adopted in 1893," although they insisted on their amendment, adopted April 20, 1896.

SEAL OF THE SONS OF THE REVOLUTION. (See pages $i_{\rm sc}(s),$ and $s_{\rm s}(s)$

On July 28, 1896, The Sons of the American Revolution wrote in part as follows:

"The resolutions of your Society, adopted at Savannah, looked to the formation of a single Society, upon the terms of union set forth in the proposed constitution of February 16, 1893, with an amendment thereto. It was, therefore, naturally supposed that, as your Society had made an amendment to that document, without consultation with this Society, the privilege should be accorded to this Society of taking steps looking to the making of other amendments in consultation with your Society.

"Some of the reasons for believing that it is necessary for both Societies to have conference committees take up the plan of reorganization anew are as follows:

"The proposed constitution of 1893 was prepared when the Societies were small and without large experience in the means of carrying out the purposes of a great national patriotic organization. Of the present members, one-half, perhaps, of each Society have joined since the proceedings of 1893; and it would seem fair that they should have a right to be heard in a matter of such importance as a constitution for the government of a permanent union of these organizations.

"The proposed constitution of 1893 is so defective that it is believed that your officers will agree that a large Society could not possibly work successfully under its provisions. For instance, the last paragraph of Article III, states that the Board of Managers of each State Society shall have full and exclusive power to determine the qualifications of applicants for membership, with power to expel or reject all applications. Article VIII, says that the General Society shall have power to admit State Societies and determine all questions affecting the qualifications of membership which may, by proper memorial, be presented for consideration. This language is confusing and seems to be contradictory.

"Besides, that constitution makes no provision for the filing of a copy of the credentials of members with the Registrar General of the National Society, and does not sufficiently define his duties or give him enough power to fix his responsibility in passing upon the validity of credentials.

"It prescribes the form of a seal which, we are informed, was long ago adopted by the Washington Continental Guards of New York City, which, having used the seal for many years, would apparently be entitled to continual use of the same without infringement. [See illustration opposite this page.]

"It names the last Wednesday in April as the day for the annual meeting, when it has been the custom of both Societies to meet on some patriotic anniversary which gives a meaning and a purpose to the occasion.

"It also provides that the larger Society shall take the exact name of the smaller Society, and it is assumed that that would mean coming under the charter of the latter Society, and be a complete and absolute absorption by one Society of the other, instead of a union of the two. The Society of the Sons of the American Revo-LUTION has never intimated, and does not now even suggest, that its name be adopted by the joint Society, but thinks that possibly some equally good title, not the exact name of either Society, might be acceptable to both; for instance, the Society of the Revolution or the Society of the American Revolution. The adoption of some such name would be following the almost universal custom in naming patriotic Societies, among which may be named the Society of the Cincinnati, the Society of Cotonial Wars, the Society of the Colonial Dames, the Society of Foreign Wars, the Society of the Army of the Potomac, etc., etc. . . . It is advisable, also, to reconsider the subject of name, for the reason that the plan of consolidation should provide for the largest possible usefulness and grandeur of the United Societies. The Sons of the AMERICAN REVOLUTION already have a Society in the new republic of Hawaii, where no society of this class could probably exist under the name simply of "Sons of the Revolution." It is entirely practicable to form branch Societies in other foreign lands, if the title be specific in indicating that it is the American Revolution from which elipibility is derived.

"Again: The constitution of '93 makes no provision for organizing Chapters in the different States. The formation of Chapters is becoming a prominent feature in The Sons of the American Revolution; it does much for the convenience of the members, and is important as a means of enlarging the membership.

"It therefore seems beyond dispute that the proposed constitution of 1893 in its present form is seriously defective and obsolete.

"If, however, your officers decline even to appoint the conference committee proposed, we would be glad to be informed whether they will, under the circumstances, wish to proceed with the work of scrutinizing the credentials of the members in both Societies. If so, our General Officers instruct me to say that they will be most happy to enter at once upon that branch of the subject, in the hope that the eliminating of one point of dispute will bring the organizations that much nearer a union desired by all.

Upon August 11, 1896, the Sons of the Revolution wrote that they considered the request of The Sons of the American Revolution for a joint committee on basis of union a rejection of their invitation; that they had no authority from their Society for such a committee; and that as the examination of credentials could be of value only in case of prospective union, they could not appreciate the importance of the appointment of a Committee on Credentials unless they were assured that The Sons of the American Revolution would act on the lines of their invitation.

On September 21, 1896, THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION replied to the foregoing, concluding as follows:

"We understand, that your Society, by correspondence and without the holding of a personal conference between your officers and ours, rejects all our propositions looking to bringing about such action, and instead of co-operating with us with a view to forming a basis of union by mutual agreement, insists upon an absorption of our Society by yours, by taking your name, acting under your charters and conducting the business under a constitution, which has been shown in a previous letter to be seriously defective, obsolete and practically impossible for both. We can only, therefore, express our extreme regret that in spite of the earnest efforts made by this Society, both in 1893 and in the present year, the much desired negotiations for union have been brought to a standstill."

Matters remained in statu quo until the adoption of the following resolutions by the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution at its meeting in Philadelphia, Pa., April 19, 1897:

WHEREAS, THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, in response to the invitation contained in the resolution passed by this Society at Savannah in April, 1896, have signified their willingness to unite with us in one national organization.

WHEREAS, We regard, and believe that they regard, the actual union of the two Societies as of such paramount importance that the settlement of the details of union should be subordinated, as far as consistent with the honor and dignity of both Societies, to the accomplishment of that end; therefore,

Resolved, That A. H. Pugh, T. E. Abbott, Timothy L. Woodruff, Horace K. Tenney and Gaillard Hunt shall be a committee of five with full power to fill any vacancies in behalf of the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution; and we respectfully request The Nation & Society of the Sons of the Revolution; and we respectfully request The Nation & Society of the Sons of the American Revolution to appoint a like committee of five in its own behalf, these two committees of five each to constitute together the above-named joint Committee of Conference on basis of union, which shall consider the Constitution and plan of union of 1893, and all proposed changes thereto, and come to an agreement, if possible, respecting a new general Constitution and a plan of union between the Societies. Each constitutent committee of five shall report to its own General Assembly the results of the conference, together with its own recommendations respecting them.

Resolved, That our own General Officers are instructed to arrange as soon as possible with the General Officers of the Sons of the American Revolution for the appointment of a joint Committee of Revision of the membership rolls, which shall be prepared at least as early as October 12, 1897, to make to the two General Assemblies an exhaustive report, in accordance with the resolutions passed at Savannah and Richmond in April, 1896.

Resolved, That we, the General Society of Sons of the Revolution hereby appoint an adjourned meeting of this General Assembly to be held in Cincinnati, Ohio, October 12, 1897, at 11 A. M., and we respectfully request THE NATIONAL SOCIETY OF SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, provided the joint Committee of Conference on basis of union shall have arrived meanwhile at an agreement, to hold a General Assembly of their own in the same city at the same time, in order that the two General Assemblies may then take action upon the report of the two joint committees.

Resolved, That our General Secretary is hereby instructed to transmit a copy of these resolutions to the Secretary General of THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLU-TION.

THE NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION responded to the foregoing by adopting the following resolutions at its meeting in Cleveland, April 30, 1807:

WHEREAS, THE SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, in Congress assembled at Cleveland, have received a friendly overture from the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution looking toward the union of the two Societies, a sincere and hearty response to the same is hereby tendered; and,

WHEREAS, THE NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLU-TION, recognizing the strong and constantly increasing sentiment of the membership favoring organic union with the Society of the Sons of the Revolution, upon terms that shall be honorable to both Societies, desires to use all reasonable efforts towards a consummation so desirable; be it

Resolved, That James M. Richardson, of Ohio; Hon. E. J. Hill, of Connecticut; Samuel E. Gross, of Illinois; George H. Shields, of Missouri, and Nathan Warren, of Massachusetts, be and they are hereby appointed a Committee, with full power to confer with the Committee appointed by the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution on the subject of union between that Society and The National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, including power to provide by the appointment, as soon as practicable, of an additional committee, if necessary, for such revision of the memership rolls of the two Societies as may seem expedient.

Resolved, That an adjourned meeting of this Congress shall be held in Cincinnati, October 12, 1897, at 11 A. M., provided the joint Committee on Union shall have agreed on a basis of union, to be reported at that date.

Resolved, That our Secretary General is hereby instructed to transmit a copy of these resolutions to the General Secretary of the Sons of the Revolution.

The joint committee appointed in pursuance of the foregoing resolutions worked assiduously during the next few months, and when the two national bodies met in different rooms in the Grand Hotel in Cincinnati, Oct. 12, 1897, the following report was presented. For convenience of future reference, the three amendments subsequently made are indicated in the following text. The words in very small type inclosed in brackets were in the report as presented, but were stricken out by the two conventions, upon motion of the Sons of the Revolution. The words in italic type were not in the report as presented but were inserted by the conventions as noted hereafter:

To EDWIN SHEPARD BARRETT, President-General of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution,

And JOHN LEE CARROLL, General President of the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution:

The committees of The Sons of the American Revolution and the Sons of the Revolution, who were appointed by their respective Societies to confer together upon the subject of union of the two Societies, beg leave to report jointly for the consideration of each Society the result of their labors.

First: They were profoundly impressed by evidences of a universal sentiment favoring union reaching them from members of both National Societies, as well as with the cordiality and harmony inspiring the members of the Committees, who approached the difficult and delicate task assigned them with great deliberation and with a deep sense of responsibility.

Second: The two Committees met, on the call of their respective Chairmen, in a joint conference on basis of Union, and after a careful consideration of the Constitution and Plan of Union of 1893, and proposed changes thereto, unanimously decided upon and do now recommend the adoption of the following Basis of Union:

Basis of Union.

- 1. The members of the two National Societies unite in forming the National Society of the American Revolution by the adoption of the Constitution hereinafter following and the election of officers as provided therein, at a meeting to be held jointly in the city of Cincinnati, Ohio, October 12, 1897.
- 2. The General Board of Managers shall designate the Colors, Seal and Insignia and direct a rule or rules for wearing Insignia and use of Colors.
- 3. The Insignia of either or both existing Societies may be worn on ceremonial occasions with the Insignia of the United Society or alone.
- 4. The State Societies of both existing Societies shall report the adoption of a Constitution in accordance with the new National Constitution, to the Secretary General promptly on that action being taken, or united State organization effected.

5. The Treasurer-General of each existing National Society shall turn over to the new Treasurer-General when he shall be duly qualified, all balances in their respective treasuries, taking his vouchers therefor.

6. The Registrars-General of the two existing Societies shall turn over all records and documents in their respective offices to the new Registrar-General when he shall have been duly qualified, taking his voucher therefor.

7. The Constitution recommended herein shall become operative by virtue of its ratification by the delegates of a majority of the States of each National Society voting at the joint meeting of the two National Societies contemplated.

Constitution

of the National Society of the American Revolution.

PREAMBLE.

We, the lineal descendants of Revolutionary Sires, inspired by the heroic deeds of a liberty-loving ancestry, in order to form a more perfect union of patriotic men, to foster true patriotism and love of country; to cherish and maintain the institutions of American freedom, do ordain this Constitution.

ARTICLE I.

The name of the Society shall be "The Society of the American Revolution."

ARTICLE II.

The objects of this society are, to perpetuate the memory of the men who, in the military, naval or civil service of the Colonies and of the Continental Congress, by their acts or counsel, achieved the Independence of this country; to further proper celebrations of the anniversaries of the birthday of Washington, and of prominent events connected with the War of the Revolution; to collect, publish and secure for preservation the rolls, records and other documents relating to that period; to mark by appropriate monuments historic places; to impress upon the present and future generations the patriotic spirit which actuated our ancestors in establishing the Republic of the United States, and to promote the feeling of friendship among its members.

ARTICLE III.

Section 1. Any male person above the age of twenty-one years, of good character, and a lineal descendant of an ancestor who shall be proven by official record or other equivalent evidence to have served as a military, naval, or marine officer; soldier, sailor, or marine, in actual service, under the authority of any of the thirteen Colonies or States, of the Continental Congress, or Vermont, or a lineal descendant of one who signed the Declaration of Independence, or of one who, as a member of the Continental Congress, or of the Congress of any of the Colonies or States, or as an official appointed by or under the authority of any such legislative bodies, actually assisted in the establishment of American Independence by overt acts of resistance to the authority of Great Britain during the War of the American Revolution, prior to the declaration of peace, in 1783, shall be eligible to membership in the Society.

Provided, That when the claim of eligibility is based on the service of an ancestor in the "minute men" or "militia," it must be satisfactorily shown that such ancestor was actually called into the service of one of the thirteen original States, or Vermont, or United States, and performed military duties; and

Provided further: That when the claim of eligibility is based on the service of an ancestor as a "sailor" or "marine," it must in like manner be shown that such service was other than shore duty and regularly performed in the Continental Navy, or the Navy of one of the original thirteen States, or Vermont, or on an armed vessel, other than a merchant ship, which sailed under letters of marque and reprisal, and that such ancestor of the applicant was duly enrolled in the ship's company, either as an officer, seaman, or otherwise than as a passenger; and

Provided further, That when the claim of eligibility is based on the service of an ancestor as an "official," such service must have been performed in the Civil Service of the United States, or of one of the thirteen original States, or Vermont, and must have been sufficiently important in character to have rendered the official liable to arrest and imprisonment, the same as a combatant, if captured by the enemy.

In the construction of this article, the Volunteer Aides-de-Camp of General Officers in the Continental Service, who were duly announced as such and who actually served in the field during a campaign, shall be comprehended as having performed qualifying service.

No service of an ancestor shall be deemed as qualifying service for membership in THE SOCIETY OF AMERICAN REVOLUTION where such ancestor, after assisting in the cause of American Independence, shall have subsequently either adhered to the enemy, or failed to maintain an honorable record throughout the War of the Revolution.

No person shall be admitted unless he be eligible under one of the provisions of this article, nor unless he be of good moral character and be judged worthy of becoming a member.

SECTION 2. That every member of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution and of The Society of the Sons of the American Revolution in good standing at the time of the adoption of this constitution, who has been admitted to either of these societies under their respective constitutions and the by-laws of their respective National Societies, shall be enrolled as a member of this society; subject, however, to the approval of the Joint Committee on Recuision of Membership Rolls.

Secreton 3. Applications for membership shall be made to any State Society, in duplicate, upon blank forms prescribed by the General Board of Managers, and shall in each case set forth the name, occupation and residence of the applicant, his line of descent, and the name, residence, and services of his ancestor or ancestors in the Revolution, from whom he derives eligibility. The applicant shall make oath or affirmation that the statements of his application are true, to the best of his knowledge and belief. Upon the approval of an application by the State Society, to which it is made, one copy shall be transmitted to the Registrar-General of the National Society, who shall examine the same and upon approval notify the Secretary of the State Society. If satisfied that the application is not properly made out, he shall return it for correction. No election of a new member shall be valid, unless his eligibility shall be approved by the Registrar-General.

ARTICLE IV.

NATIONAL AND STATE SOCIETIES.

Section 1. The National Societies shall embrace all the members of the State Societies now existing, or which may hereafter be established under this Constitution.

Section 2. Whenever in any State or Territory, in which a State Society does not exist, or in which a State Society has become inactive or failed for two years to pay its annual dues to the National Society, fifteen or more persons duly qualified for membership in this Society may associate themselves as a State Society of the [War for American Independence*] American Revolution, and organize in accordance with this Constitution; they may be admitted by the General Board of Managers of the National Society as The —— Society of the American Revolution, and shall thereafter have exclusive local jurisdiction in the State or Territory, or in the District in which they are organized, subject to the provisions of this Constitution; but this provision shall not be construed so as to exclude the admission of members living in other States.

SECTION 3. Each State Society shall judge of the qualifications of its members and of those proposed for membership, subject to the provisions of this Constitution, and shall regulate all matters pertaining to its own affairs. It shall have authority to establish local chapters within its own jurisdiction and to endow the chapters with such power as it may deem proper, not inconsistent with this Constitution. It shall have authority, after due notice and impartial trial, to expel any member, who, by conduct unbecoming a gentleman, shall render himself unworthy to remain a member of the Society.

Section 4. Each State Society shall submit to the Annual Congress of the National Society a report, setting forth, by name, the additions, transfers and deaths, and any other changes in the membership and progress of the State Society during the preceding year, and make such suggestions, as it shall deem proper for the promotion of the objects of the whole Society.

Section 5. Whenever a member, in good standing in his Society, changes his residence from the jurisdiction of the State Society of which he is a member, to that of another, he shall be entitled, if he so elects, to a certificate of honorable dimission from his own State Society, in order that he may be transferred to the State Society to whose jurisdiction he has changed his residence; provided, that his nembership shall continue in the former until he shall have been elected a member of the latter. Each State Society shall, however, retain full control of the admission of members by transfer.

^{*} The above amendment was for the correction of a typographical oversight, and has an interesting history. In the preliminary negotiations of the conference committees, the Sons of the Revolution had proposed the name "Society of the Revolution" and the Sons of the American Revolution proposed the name "Society of the American Revolution" When it appeared that the Sons of the Revolution as tenaciously oppose it, Lieut. Gov. Woodruff of the latter proposed as a compromise the title "The Society of American Independence." Mr. Warren, of the Sons of the American Revolution proposed the insertion of the words "the War for." making the title, "The Society of the War for American Independence. This title was regarded as cumbersome by both committees, but seemed to be the best that could be agreed upon and was printed in the report which it was proposed to submit to the two conventions on October 12, 1897. On October 17, however, Messrs. Pugh and Hunt of the Sons of the Revolution informed Mr. Richardson of the S. A. R. committee that the S. R. were willing to accept the title proposed by the S. A. R., and at a joint meeting that evening, the title "Society of the American Revolution" was adopted. In the reports hastily reprinted for submission the following day, the title was not corrected in the above instance.

SECTION 6. Wherever the word "State" occurs in this Constitution, it shall be held to include within its meaning the District of Columbia and the Territories of the United States.

SECTION 7. A Society may be formed in any foreign country by fifteen or more persons who are eligible to membership under this Constitution, which shall bear the same relation to the National Society as a State Society, subject to the provisions of this Constitution.

ARTICLE V.

OFFICERS AND MANAGERS.

SECTION 1. The General Officers of the National Society shall be, President General, five Vice-Presidents-General, Secretary-General, Assistant Secretary-General, Treasurer-General, Registrar-General, Assistant Registrar-General, Historian-General, Chancellor-General, and Chaplain-General, who shall be elected by ballot by vote of the majority of the members present at the annual meeting of the Congress of the National Society and shall hold office for one year and until their successors shall be elected.

Section 2. The General Officers shall constitute the General Board of Managers of the National Society, which Board shall have authority to adopt and promulgate the By-Laws of the National Society, to prescribe the duties of the General Officers to provide the seal, to designate and make regulations for the issue of the insignia, and to transact the general business of the National Society during the intervals between the sessions of the Congress. Meetings of the General Board may be held, after not less than ten days' notice, at the call of the President-General, or, in case of his absence or inability, at the call of the Senior Vice-President-General, certified by the Secretary-General. Meetings shall be called at the request of seven members. At all such meetings seven shall constitute a quorum.

SECTION 3. An Executive Committee of seven, of whom the President-General shall be the Chairman, may be elected by the Board of Managers, which Committee shall, in the interim between the meetings of the Board, transact such business as shall be delegated to it by the Board of Managers.

ARTICLE VI.

DUES.

Each State Society shall pay annually to the Treasurer-General to defray the expenses of the National Society, twenty-five cents for each active member thereof All such dues shall be paid on or before the first day of April in each year, for the ensuing year, in order to secure representation in the meetings of the National Society

ARTICLE VII.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

SECTION I. The annual meeting of the National Society for the election of the General Officers and for transaction of business, shall be held on the 19th day of April of each year, unless the same falls on Sunday, when it shall be held on the 20th. The time, hour and place of such meeting shall be designated by the Board of Managers.

SECTION 2. Special meetings of the Congress may be called by the President-General, and shall be called by him when directed so to do by the Board of Managers, or whenever requested in writing so to do by at least three State Societies, on giving thirty days' notice, specifying the time and place of such meetings and the business to be transacted.

Section 3. The following shall be members of all such annual or special meetings of the Congress and shall be entitled to vote therein:

- (1) All the officers and ex-Presidents-General of the National Society.
- (2) The President and Secretary of each State Society as delegates at large.
- (3) One delegate from each State Society for each one hundred members of the Society within a State, and for a fraction of fifty members or over.

ARTICLE VIII.

AMENDMENTS.

This Constitution may be altered or amended at any meeting of the National Society, when the same shall have been recommended by a State Society. A notice of the proposed amendment or alteration shall be sent by the Secretary-General to the President of each Society sixty days in advance of such meeting. An affirmative vote of two-thirds of the States present shall be necessary for their adoption.

ARTICLE IX.

This Constitution shall take effect when ratified by a majority of the [States of each National Society voting in Joint Meeting] State Societies of each National Society.

We would respectfully recommend that in the event of the adoption of our report by the two National bodies to whom it is submitted, that they immediately meet together in joint session for the purpose of completing the organization herein provided for.

For the Sons of the Revolution:

ACHILLES HENRY PUGH,
Chairman,
TIMOTHY L. WOODRUFF,
HORACE KENT TENNEY,
GAILLARD HUNT.

For the Sons of the American Revolution:

JAMES M. RICHARDSON,
Chairman,
GEORGE H. SHIELDS,
NATHAN WARREN,
EBENEZER J. HILL,
SAMUEL EBERLY GROSS.

The Congress of The Sons of the American Revolution adopted the report of the Joint Committee unanimously without amendment. About 5.30 P. M. a committee from the Sons of the Revolution appeared and reported that they had adopted the constitution by a majority * with some amendments. (The amendments are indicated in the foregoing text.) They reported that they had also adopted the following:

^{*} It was subsequently stated that the delegations of 16 States voted for the Constitution, 10 voted against it, 1 was divided, and 3, including the New York delegation, did not vote.

"Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to communicate the action of this General Society of the Sons of the Revolution to The National Society of the Sons of the Revolution, which has been taken upon the question of the union of the two Societies, and upon the question of the adoption of the new Constitution, and that said Committee be empowered to request similar action upon the part of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution. And, further, to agree upon a time and place of meeting of the Joint Committees of the two Societies, for the purpose of fully perfecting the union of the two Societies in the event of a majority of the State Societies approving of the action of the General Society."

"Resolved, That each State Society of the Sons of the Revolution and The Sons of the American Revolution shall submit the papers of their respective Societies to the Registrar of the other Society for examination. That after such examination shall be had each Registrar shall certify to the eligibility of each member of the other Society under the National Constitution of the Society of which he is a member. In case any doubt shall arise as to the correctness of any paper, then such doubtful paper shall be submitted to the Joint Committee on Revision of Membership Rolls. In case there is any jurisdiction in which there is only one Society, such papers shall also be submitted to the said Joint Committee on Revision of Membership Rolls."

"Resolved, That the Committee on the Revision of Rolls, appointed under the resolution adopted April 19, 1897, be and is hereby continued in office, and is authorized and directed to at once proceed, in conjunction with the Committee appointed for that purpose by THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, to examine, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution as amended, reported by the joint conference, the rolls of the members of THE NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION and the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution, for the purpose of ascertaining whether any member in either society is not in fact entitled to membership therein. And upon the report of the Joint Committee thus formed all members not found to have been entitled to membership in their respective National Societies, under their own Constitution and By-laws, be held not to be entitled to membership of the Society of the American Revolution, but stricken from their rolls, unless within such reasonable time as shall be approved by said Committee such members shall prove their rights to such membership."

Upon the withdrawal of the Committee of the Sons of the Revolution, The Sons of the American Revolution unanimously accepted and adopted the resolutions and amendments proposed by the former society. They appointed Dr. E. M. Gallaudet, of District of Columbia, Maj. Chas. K. Darling, of Massachusetts; Gen. George H. Shields, of Missouri; Stephen M. Wright, of New York, and L. E. Holden, of Ohio, a committee having the same purpose and authority as the corresponding committee of the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution, and to act with the latter committee. They also appointed as a Committee on the Revision of Rolls, A. Howard Clark, of District of Columbia, D. W. Manchester, of Ohio; William S. Stryker, of New Jersey; Edward Hagaman Hall of New York, and William J. Rhees, of District of Columbia.

The corresponding committees appointed by the Sons of the Revolution were as follows: Committee to agree upon time and place of meeting of the United Society in the event of ratification: Achilles Henry Pugh, Rudard Hurd, Gaillard Hunt, Persifor M. Cooke and E. Morgan Wood. Committee on Revision of Rolls, Charles Henry Jones of Pennsylvania, T. E. V. Smith of New York, R. F. Stevens of New Jersey, H. O. Thompson of Maryland and Rudard Hurd of Minnesota.

Upon the adjournment of the Cincinnati conventions, the proposed Constitution was submitted to the State Societies for ratification. The Empire State Society of Sons of the American Revolution voted upon the question at a special meeting held November 15, 1897, at which 456 votes were cast in favor of ratification and 7 against. The other Societies voted at their convenience, with the following result:

Ratifying: Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Hawaii, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin. 32.

Rejecting: Oregon. 1. Not acting: Connecticut.

No reports: France, Louisiana, New Hampshire, and Texas. 4.

The New York Society of the Sons of the Revolution voted upon the question at a meeting held November 16, 1897, at which a wide divergence of opinion was manifest. Those opposed to union moved the rejection of the Cincinnati Constitution outright. Those in favor of union moved to amend by providing for the appointment of a committee which should propose such modifications as would meet the objections. The amendment was lost by a vote of 142 to 162 and later the motion to reject was carried by a vote of 171 to 67.

On March 16, 1898, the General Secretary of the Sons of the Revolution reported that their State Societies had voted as follows:

Ratifying: District of Columbia, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, and Ohio. 6.

Rejecting: California, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Maryland, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and Washington. 17.

No action: Colorado and Missouri. 2.

A majority of the State Societies of the Sons of the Revolution having refused to ratify, the union failed to become effective, and pour parlers between the two Societies upon the subject have ceased.

Constitution and By-laws.

PREAMBLE.

The Sons of the American Revolution, a patriotic Society, whose membership has always been based upon lineal descent from participants in the American Revolution, was first organized in the State of California, in the year 1875, as the Sons of Revolutionary Sires. A National organization was formed April 30, 1880, by the union of co-equal State Societies under the name of the Sons of the American Revolution. The Society in the State of New York was organized February 11, 1890, and incorporated April 8, 1895, under the name "The Empire State Society of the Sons of the American Revolution." Now, therefore, pursuant to the Laws of said State, the members of said Society do hereby ordain and enact the following:

CONSTITUTION.

ARTICLE I.

NAME.

This Society shall be known as "THE EMPIRE STATE SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION." Its Headquarters shall be in the City of New York.

ARTICLE II.

OBJECTS.

The objects of the Society shall be to perpetuate the memory of the men who, by their services or sacrifices during the War of the American Revolution, achieved the Independence of the American People; to promote fellowship among their descendants; to inspire a more profound reverence for the principles of the government founded by our forefathers; to acquire and preserve the records of the individual services or sacrifices of the patriots of that War, as well as documents, relics and landmarks; to encourage historical research in relation to the American Revolution and the study of American History; to mark the scenes of that Revolution by appropriate memorials; to celebrate the anniversaries of the prominent events of that War; to foster true patriotism; to maintain and extend the institutions of American freedom and to carry out the purposes expressed in the Preamble to the Constitution of our Country and the injunctions of Washington in his farewell address to the American People.

ARTICLE 111.

NATIONAL SOCIETY.

This Society shall form a part of The NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION. It recognizes all other societies of the Sons of the AMERICAN REVOLUTION as co-equal bodies and their members as compatriots, entitled to receive from this Society such information, assistance and fraternal consideration as may best promote our common objects and purposes.

ARTICLE IV.

SEAL

The seal of the Society shall be two and three-eighths of an inch in diameter, charged with the figure of a Minute Man, grasping a musket in his right hand, and surrounded by a constellation of thirteen stars, who shall be depicted in the habit of a husbandman of the period of the American Revolution, and as in the act of deserting the plow for the service of his country; the whole encircled by a band three-eighths of an inch wide, within which shall appear the legend, "EMPIRE STATE SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, Organized February 11, 1890. Incorporated April 8, 1895." [See illustration opposite this page.]

ARTICLE V.

INSIGNIA.

The Insignia of the Society shall comprise (1) a cross surmounted by an eagle in gold; (2) a rosette.

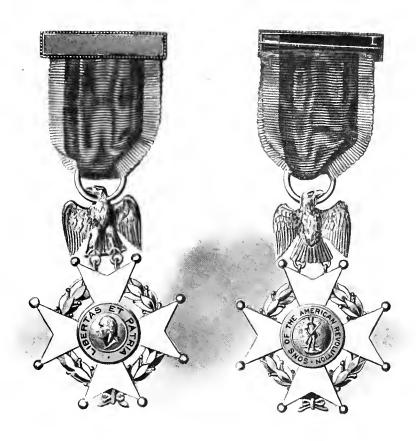

I. The cross shall be of silver, with four arms, covered with white enamel and eight gold points, same size as Chevalier's Cross of the Legion of Honor of France, with gold medallion in the center, bearing on the obverse a bust of Washington in profile, and on the reverse the figure of a Minute Man, surrounded by a ribbon enammeled blue, with the motto: "Libertas et Patria" on the obverse, and the legend "Sons of the American Revolution" on the reverse, both in letters of gold. The cross shall be surmounted by an eagle in gold, and the whole decoration suspended from a ring of gold by a ribbon of deep blue with white and buff edges, and may be worn by any member of the Society on ceremonial occasions only, and shall be carried on the left breast or at the collar, if an officer of the National Society, or the President, active or past of a State Society. [See illustration opposite this page.]

2. The rosette shall be seven-sixteenths of an inch in diameter, of usual pattern, displaying the colors of the Society, blue, white and buff, and may be worn by all members at discretion in the upper left-hand button-hole of the coat.

ARTICLE VI.

MEMBERSHIP.

Any man shall be eligible to membership in this Society who, being of the age of twenty-one years or over, and a desirable associate and a citizen of good repute in the community, is the lineal descendant of an ancestor, who was at all times unfailing in his loyalty to and rendered actual service in the cause of American Independence, either as an officer, soldier, seaman, marine, militiaman or minute man, in the armed forces of the Continental Congress or of any one of the several colonies or states, or as a signer of the Declaration of Independence, or as a member of a committee of safety or correspondence, or as a member of any continental, provincial or colonial congress or legislature, or as a civil officer, either of one of the colonies or states, or of the government, during the period of the American Revolution, or as a recognized patriot, who performed actual service by overt acts of resistance to the authority of Great Britain.

ARTICLE VII.

HONORARY MEMBERSHIP.

Honorary Membership may be conferred upon any person eligible to membership in this Society.

ARTICLE VIII.

MANAGERS.

- 1. There shall be thirty Managers of the Society, nine of whom shall also be elected respectively as a President, a First Vice-President, a Second Vice-President, a Third Vice-President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, an Historian, a Registrar and a Chaplain of the Society.
 - 2. They shall be elected by ballot at the annual meeting.
- 3. They shall be elected for one year, and shall hold office until their successors are elected and shall have accepted.
 - 4. Vacancies in office shall be filled for the unexpired term.
- 5. The Managers heretofore elected shall hold office for the terms for which they were respectively elected.
 - 6. The Managers shall constitute the Board of Managers.
- 7. Any Manager of the Society who shall be absent from three consecutive meetings of the Board of Management shall ipso facto vacate his office, unless such absence be excused by the Board of Managers for some bona fide and reasonable excuse.

ARTICLE IX.

DELEGATES AND ALTERNATES.

At each annual meeting the Society shall elect the number of delegates and alternates to the Congress of the National Society, to which it may be entitled.

ARTICLE X.

LOCAL CHAPTERS.

I. A charter for a local chapter may be granted by the Board of Managers to fifteen or more members of the Society residing in the same County, upon their written petition stating the proposed name, the County in which it is to be located, and the names of its proposed members. Such Chapter may adopt a Constitution and By-Laws not inconsistent with those of this Society or of the National Society.

Constitution of the State Society.

- 2. No person shall be admitted to membership in such Chapter unless he is a member in good standing of this Society; and all members of this Society shall be eligible for membership therein. Any member who shall in any way lose membership in the State Society shall thereupon cease to be a member of such Chapter.
- 3. Membership in a chapter shall not in any way change the relation nor impair the obligations of its members to this Society.

4. Upon the election of its officers, each local chapter shall report the same to the Secretary of this Society.

ARTICLE XI.

DISCIPLINE AND DISQUALIFICATION.

- 1. A member of this Society may be expelled by the Board of Managers by a two-thirds vote of those present at any meeting thereof, after notice and an opportunity to be heard, if he shall have been convicted of a crime; or he may be censured, suspended or expelled in like manner when proved guilty of conduct either unbecoming a gentleman, or prejudicial to the interests of the Society.
- 2. In like manner a membership may be terminated for failure to pay dues, and also upon discovery that the member was not eligible at the time of his election.
 - 3. A member in arrears for dues cannot vote or hold office.

ARTICLE XII.

VACANCIES IN OFFICE.

An office shall become vacant by death, resignation or loss of membership. The Board of Managers shall have power to designate one of its members to discharge the duties of any vacant office until the next regular meeting of the Society, when it shall be filled by the Society.

ARTICLE XIII.

AMENDMENTS.

This Constitution may be amended at any meeting of the Society by a two-thirds vote of the members present either in person or by proxy, provided such proposed amendment shall have been presented in writing at a regular meeting held at least thirty days prior thereto, and shall have accompanied the notice for a meeting held at least thirty days subsequent to its presentation, and been mailed to every member at least fifteen days prior to such last-mentioned meeting.

By-Laws.

SECTION I.

ADMISSION OF MEMBERS,

Application for membership must be made in duplicate upon standard forms furnished by the Society, be recommended by two members, set out the pedigree of the applicant back to the ancestor on whose service the application is based, the qualifying service of said ancestor, the address of such applicant and such information as may be required to satisfy the Registrar of the validity of the claim, and other information as the applicant may desire. The Secretary shall forward the application to the Registrar and furnish the membership committee with the name and address of each applicant and of his recommendors. The Registrar and the Membership Committee shall separately investigate the application and report in writing to the Board of Managers, and the Board of Managers may then elect the applicant. Three negative votes shall exclude from membership. Upon such election the Secretary shall notify the applicant thereof, and he shall be admitted to membership upon the payment of his initiation fee and the dues to the first of April following.

SECTION II.

ELECTION OF HONORARY MEMBERS.

t. Any one eligible under the Constitution may, by a two-thirds vote of the members present at any regular meeting, be elected an Honorary Member of the Society, if his name, together with the names of two proposers, shall have been published at a regular meeting held at least two months prior to the election. Honorary Members shall be exempt from the payments of fees and dues, but shall not vote, hold office or have any pecuniary interest in the property of this Society.

2. A person elected to Honorary Membership shall be notified thereof; and, if not accepted within six months after the mailing of the notice, the election may be canceled by the Society.

The Society shall be informed of the action of the person so elected.

SECTION III.

CERTIFICATE OF MEMBERSHIP.

Upon the payment of one dollar by a member he shall be entitled to receive a certificate of membership signed and sealed by the proper officers of the National Society and by the President, Secretary and Registrar of this Society.

SECTION IV.

WITHDRAWALS FROM MEMBERSHIP.

Any one not indebted to the Society may withdraw from Membership. Such withdrawal shall be in writing and addressed to the Board of Managers.

SECTION V.

TRANSFER OF MEMBERSHIP.

A member in good standing, upon his written application and by order of the Board of Managers, may be transferred to any other Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

SECTION VI.

FEES AND DUES.

- 1. The initiation fee and the annual dues shall each be five dollars.
- 2. The annual dues shall be payable in advance on the first day of April in each year. Members elected prior to the first day of October shall pay dues for the whole year. Members elected on or after that day shall pay one-half the dues for the year.

3. Members admitted by transfer from any other Society to which they have paid an initiation fee, shall be exempt from another initiation fee.

4. The payment at one time of seventy-five dollars by any member not indebted to the Society shall constitute him a life member, exempt from annual dues.

5. Annually on the 30th day of September the President and Secretary of each local chapter shall transmit to the Treasurer of this Society a certified list of the members of such Chapter, and on the 15th day of October, next following, the Treasurer of this Society shall transmit to the Treasurer of each Chapter two dollars for each member of such Chapter included in such list, who shall not be indebted to the Society.

SECTION VII.

MEETINGS.

1. The annual meeting of the Society shall be held in the City of New York at 8 P. M. on the fourth Tuesday of February in each year.

2. Regular meetings of the Society shall be held at 8 o'clock P. M. on the fourth Tuesday of the months of October, November, January, February, March, April and May.

3. A special meeting may be called by the President or by the Board of Managers and shall be called by the Secretary on the written request of fifteen members stating the object of such meeting. The Secretary shall give at least ten days' notice, by mail, of such meeting, stating the day, hour and place of meeting and the business for which it is called and no other business shall be transacted thereat.

4. The place of all meetings, except special meetings, shall be fixed by the Board of Managers and of special meetings by the officer or Board calling the same.

SECTION VIII.

NOMINATING COMMITTEE,

1. At the regular meeting of this Society in October in each year nominations shall be made for a nominating committee and the Secretary shall transmit with the notice for the regular meeting of the Society in November of each year a printed list of all the nominations so made.

2. There shall be elected by a plurality of votes and by ballot at the regular meeting of the Society in the month of November in each year a nominating committee of seven members, no one of whom shall be a member of the Board of Managers.

3. The nominating committee shall elect from among its members a sub-committee of not less than three, which shall examine the records of the Secretary, Treasurer and Registrar and report thereon to the Society at its January meeting.

4. At the regular meeting in January the nominating committee shall report in writing names of candidates for offices and for delegates and alternates to the Congress of the National Society.

SECTION IX.

NOMINATIONS BY MEMBERS.

Any seven members of the Society may, in writing signed by them and filed with 58 the Secretary at least twenty days before the annual election, nominate candidates for any offices in the Society and for delegates and alternates.

SECTION X.

1. Immediately upon being made, nominations shall be conspicuously posted in the otifice of the Secretary. All written nominations shall, upon request, be exhibited to any member in good standing.

2. The Secretary, at least fifteen days before the annual election, shall mail to each member of the Society printed ballots for all offices to be filled and a list of all persons nominated to fill the same and for delegates and alternates, together with the names of the persons by whom any nomination is made.

SECTION XI.

VOTING PERSONALLY OR BY PROXY,

1. Members may vote at any meeting of the Society either in person or by proxy,

2. The Board of Managers shall cause a blank proxy to be mailed to each member with all ballots.

SECTION XII.

INSPECTORS OF TheCTION.

At the regular meeting in January in each year the presiding officer thereof shall appoint three inspectors of election, no one of whom shall be a member of the Board of Managers. Failure of an inspector to attend at the opening of the polls shall make his place vacant. Such vacancies shall be filled by appointment by the inspectors who shall attend at the opening of the polls and, in case none attend, other inspectors shall be appointed by the voters then present.

SECTION XIII.

ANNUAL ELECTION.

The polls for the annual election shall be opened by the inspectors of election at the opening of the meeting and remain open until 10 o'clock F. M., and until all persons present, either in person or by proxy, entitled and desiring to vote, shall have had opportunity to do so. Any member may vote for any other member, though not nominated. On the closing of the polls, the inspectors of election shall publicly canvass the votes cast and without delay certify to the presiding officer, over their signatures, the result of such canvass. The presiding officer shall then announce the result and declare elected the persons receiving a plurality of votes and such persons shall immediately assume the duties of their respective offices. If for any office no person shall receive a plurality of the votes cast therefor, a supplementary election shall be held at the next regular meeting of the Society and such election then be completed. The Secretary shall prepare new ballots giving the names of the candidates nominated and the offices to be filled and mail the same to each member of the Society at least fifteen days before such supplementary election. In case of failure to elect all the delegates or all the alternates and in case of failure of any to attend who were elected, their places shall be filled by the delegates present at the National Congress.

Upon the decease of any member, notice thereof, and of the time and place of the funeral, shall, if practicable, be given by the Secretary by publication in two prominent newspapers.

Any member having knowledge of the decease of another member shall promptly notify the Secretary thereof and furnish such information as shall be needed for publication. The decease of a member shall be communicated to the Society at the succeeding meeting.

SECTION XXX.

MISCELLANEOUS.

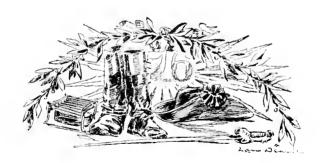

- 1. The Society may at any time, when deemed proper, appoint an Assistant Secretary, also an Assistant Registrar, and specify their respective terms and duties.
- 2. No moneys of the Society shall be appropriated to any purpose whatever, except for conducting its own business and for the objects of the Society as specified in the Constitution.
- 3. The fiscal year shall begin and end on the 15th day of January in each year, and the Treasurer's January report shall be printed and mailed to every member with the notice for the annual meeting.

SECTION XXXI.

AMENDMENTS.

These By-Laws may be amended at any meeting of the Society by majority vote 63 of the members present either in person or by proxy, provided such proposed amendment shall have been duly presented in writing at a regular meeting held at least thirty days prior thereto and shall have accompanied the notice for a meeting held at least thirty days subsequent to its presentation and been mailed to every member at least fifteen days prior to such last-mentioned meeting.

MONUMENT AT SCHUYLERVILLE, N. Y. Commemorating the Battle of Saratoga.

Roll of Members.

Note: Membership in the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution is based solely on lineal descent from an ancestor who assisted in securing the Independence of the United States, and wherever the Revolutionary services of collateral members of a family are given in the following pages, they are mentioned only as matters of interest, as are many other facts which in themselves constitute no ground for eligibility. Antecedent generations in the Revolutionary line, back to the immigrant ancestor, are given when they are on record in the Society's archives, as adding value to the book, but the absence of such antecedent lineage in other cases does not necessarily mean that the families can be traced no further, as the Society does not require that the line shall be given further back than the Revolutionary patriot. Every member has been requested to supply for this book his college degrees, military services, public offices and the other organizations to which he belongs, but where such data are lacking, allowance should be made in some instances for the inaccessibility of many members on account of the War with Spain, and in others for the fact that the sending of such information was entirely optional. In order to assist the eye, an index figure has been substituted for a repetition of the word "great" in generations more remote than great-grandson. Thus, "great2-grandson" means "great-great-grandson"; "great-grandson" means "great-great-great-great-great-grandson," etc. The names of the lineal ancestors who participated in the Revolution are printed in italics, and refer to the corresponding names in the "Roll of Ancestors." The numbers set opposite each member's name are his State and National Numbers respectively.

SAMUEL ALLEN, JR.: Born in Monmouth County, N. J., in 1757; died there in 1830. Samuel, Sr., was a Quaker, but his son fully compensated for his father's non-combatant principles by the energy and daring with which he espoused the American cause. A bold and dashing youth, at the head of a company of independent patriots, he was the champion of the persecuted and the terror of the Tories. He was repeatedly driven from home by parties sent to capture him; thrice saw his house burned; once captured and escaped. He was merciless with his enemies, and captured and hanged them by his own decree. His daring and his wealth gave him a commanding position in his vicinity, and he was by common consent the General-in-Chief of military movement in his district, and the judge of the prisoners brought before him. Capt. Allen was one of the most picturesque figures of the Revolution outside of the regularly enlisted troops.—Addison Allen, Ethan Allen.
